

TECH SAVIOURS wiki

The wiki is powered by DokuWiki in combination with the Bootstrap3 template.

Contributing to wiki

Like any open source project, it lives from the efforts of its users.

The documentation can always be improved, or you can create more tutorials. But they must be easy to read and generally understandable to a complete newcomer who want more digital privacy but don't know how to achieve it.

Git or registration

The normal procedure fork/pull requests on Forgejo instance or send us an email to wiki@techsaviours.org if you prefer to register on the wiki website itself, as we do not have registration enabled.

Syntax

You can use the DokuWiki's syntax. We tried to implement Markdown, but unfortunately it doesn't really work. Too many failures with plugins or core.

Structure

The wiki is mainly structured in 4 parts (namespaces):

- Server
  - Operating Systems
  - Services
- Phone
  - Operating Systems
  - Apps
- Desktop
  - Operating Systems
  - Services
- Extras

If the tutorials are the same (e.g. desktop and server), create the page and add a link to it

{{page>en:server:services:name}}

Always add the link from the desktop to the server. This makes it easier to change the tutorials in the future.
